

PSY-240 : Behavioral Psychology

Introduction to the experimental analysis of behavior. Historical and modern approaches in the scientific study of learning are discussed. Students are required to demonstrate factual knowledge in the major content areas, procedures, and other advanced issues in regards to simple forms of learning such as habituation and sensitization and more complex forms of associative learning exemplified in classical and operant conditioning.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

PSY-230 or permission of instructor

Term Offered

Fall and Spring

Session Cycle

FS