

SPAN-352W : Hispanic Masculinities

This course will examine the social construction of masculinity in the Hispanic world. We will read about and study concepts such as honor, shame, sexual identity, machismo and their correlated societal effects. We will also research and discuss the topics of gender relations and sexuality and how these themes intersect with issues of race, class, and politics. We will explore the construction of masculinity in specific areas such as sports (futbol) and dance (tango, salsa, etc.). Our readings will primarily be in Spanish but will come from Spain, Central and South America, and also the United States. FILA general education: world cultures and writing intensive.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

FILA-150 or FILA-350EW; ENG-110; SPAN-202

Term Offered

Fall Only

Session Cycle

F