

DMS-592 : Master's Project Implementation

This course will support student work in completing the field implementation of their master's project. Each student will work early in the semester to finalize their proposal with their faculty advisor and client. They will also solicit two additional faculty members to sit on their master's committee and serve as mentors throughout the project. Committee members may be any full-time, tenure-track faculty member at the college approved by faculty advisors. Students will be required to make periodic progress reports to the Program Coordinator and attend several class meetings that will help clarify the field experience process. The Program Coordinator will be available to help students communicate with clients and to obtain the resources they need for their projects. Off-Campus Distance Electronic Synchronous Remote Delivery.
